A series of 2-methyltrifluoromethylphenylsulfonyleureas were synthesized, and their anti-hepatitis C virus (HCV) activity was studied. Among them, the 2,4-dimethyl analog (2c) potently inhibited both the HCV NS3 protease and the HCV helicase. Compound 2c was found to be a tight-binding bifunctional inhibitor with a very low IC₅₀ value against HCV NS3 protease (3.13±0.59nM) and a very low IC₅₀ value against HCV NS3 helicase (48.4±5.54nM). The two activities did not have any detectable interaction. The enzyme inhibition was determined to be competitive. NS3 protease (S256) and NS3 helicase (S364) mutation studies indicated that the formation d4474df7b8
