Category:Daz3dQ: How to make a single key of shortcut the same as a windows shortcut? I have a keyboard shortcut set up for a particular Windows shortcut.

However, in Linux I use super+V for that shortcut and there is no way to make that keyboard shortcut work the same as it does in Windows. Is there a way to change this?

A: Yes. Go to the global shortcuts settings and modify the shortcut key you want. Or you can use xbindkeys to accomplish the same. Open `/etc/X11/xorg.conf.d/20-xkb.conf` Append the following to the end of the file. `keycode 136 = super_L` And reload the config using `sudo xmodmap -pke > /tmp/xmodmap.out` `sudo cp /tmp/xmodmap.out / 2d92ce491b`
