A: The first thing I noticed was that you were using a slow computer with a pentium 4 processor. Anything more than a 5 year old computer is going to be very slow. Next thing you notice is that you don't actually have a compiler but are using a resource compiler which will probably end up creating just as much garbage as it does compile. I compiled the code and it did seem to be working. The best thing to do is to try and compile the code yourself and see if it works. Compile it yourself using g++, if you don't know how to compile a compiler then just google 'how to compile g++' and it will tell you how to compile and run it. Good luck. After an investigation that lasted over six months, the British Columbia Securities Commission (BCSC) has found that Morgen Financial, the Vancouver-based company that owns over 70 payday lending stores in the region, failed to register its securities with the agency. The BCSC first launched an investigation into Morgen Financial in July of 2016, as part of a larger audit it was undertaking to examine whether new consumer financial products in the province were in compliance with the securities act. Morgen Financial is a privately-owned, Vancouver-based company, founded in 2011 and is the largest provider of payday loans in British Columbia. Under the securities act, companies that intend to offer securities in B.C. must register those securities with the BCSC prior to doing so. Registrants are required to disclose any documents that would reveal the identity of the investor, and the commission is empowered to investigate any potential violations of the act. The investigation began after a shareholder of Morgen Financial lodged a complaint with the BCSC, alleging that the company had violated the securities act by failing to register as a securities issuer. In a written decision released today, the BCSC stated that "substantial evidence" had been presented to conclude that Morgen Financial was in violation of the securities act for failing to register its consumer finance securities, which include payday loans, mortgages, auto and rent payments, and personal loans. The commission found that the company had failed to register as an issuer of consumer finance securities between September 30, 2015, and November 30, 2016, and that the company was unable to provide sufficient evidence that it was registered as an issuer between the dates of August 20, 2014, and September 30, 2015. The company is prohibited from
