trying to insert some data from an array into an SQLite database and allow it to create a database if it doesn't already exist.

When the user puts in a name for a new user, the application must be able to create a database using a database name of yourName. The code I have so far works fine until it creates the database and tries to populate it with data from the array. I tried a couple of different methods and none of them seem to work. I'm sure it's something basic that I'm missing because I'm new to programming. I added in checking to see if the database exists and also if the database name is empty or not. It does check for database existence and creates the database if it doesn't exist. But then I get an error saying that the username is empty after it tries to populate it. Any help is appreciated. SQLiteDatabase db = openOrCreateDatabase(mContext, "userDB", mDatabaseConfig. 3e33713323
