Use our free application to ensure your computer's hard drives run as smoothly as possible. Monitor hard disk activity with Disk Sentinel, an application designed to provide information about your hard disk and show the temperature in a graphical way. Monitor performance A major feature of Disk Sentinel is its ability to monitor the performance of your hard disks. Hard disk activity and hard disk temperature are displayed on the left side of the main window. Examine temperature A temperature graph is displayed on the right side of the main window. Using a slider, you can change the chart's scale and choose between Celsius and Fahrenheit. The chart shows the temperature of your hard disk as well as the temperature of the day. Clicking on the temperature graph will show you additional information about the hard disk's temperature. Manage power The Power section on the main window provides information on when your computer was last powered on and it will show the estimated time your computer will run out of power. You can get detailed information about the current, daily average and maximum power consumption. Configure custom settings You can easily modify the application's look and behavior. Settings are stored in the Settings section, which allows you to assign a Hotkey to show/hide the application. Disk Sentinel can be configured to show the temperature in the title bar or the System Tray. Provide information about your hard disks to the next computer user The Temperature tab shows information such as the average and maximum temperature of your hard disk over the past day and the daily average. An additional feature is the ability to display the graph on the right side of the main window. Track down potential problems The main window allows you to track potential issues with your hard disk by creating a Surface Test. In case your hard disk has a problem, Disk Sentinel will show a Surface Chart, which will show you the current activity and temperature of your hard disk. Track down potential problems with your hard disk Use the Surface Chart to find out if there is a problem on your hard disk. Once you're done, you can create a Surface Test, which will create a Surface Chart that will give you information about the current activity and temperature of your hard disk. Configure surface test You can use the Surface Test feature to create Surface Tests with just one click. Create up to five Surface Tests with different test algorithms and frequencies. Save all Surface Tests to the application's settings. Force a Disk Surface Test If you force a Disk Surface Test on your hard disk, the test will run even
