Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a photo-electric conversion device, a method of producing the photo-electric conversion device and an image-pickup apparatus including the photo-electric conversion device. 2. Description of the Related Art In recent years, many photo-electric conversion devices including photo-detection units have been proposed. A photo-detection unit is mainly composed of a PN junction (charge transfer region) and it operates by transferring an electric charge generated in the PN junction to an outside circuit. FIG. 13 is a cross sectional view showing a conventional photo-detection unit. As shown in FIG. 13, the conventional photo-detection unit includes a PN junction 1 and a gate electrode 2 formed on the PN junction 1. The gate electrode 2 is formed of a P-type polysilicon film. An N-type semiconductor layer 3 is formed in the PN junction 1, so that there is formed a depletion layer 4. Accordingly, when a reverse bias voltage is applied between the gate electrode 2 and a P-type semiconductor layer 5, the depletion layer 4 is generated by extending from the PN junction 1 so that the electric charges generated in the depletion layer 4 are transferred to the P-type semiconductor layer 5. Because the electric charges transferred to the P-type semiconductor layer 5 are detected as a signal by a charge coupled device (CCD) or the like, it is possible to convert the signal into the information. In the conventional photo-detection unit, the P-type polysilicon film is used for the gate electrode 2. Therefore, it is necessary to increase a reverse bias voltage for applying the reverse bias to the PN junction 1 in order to transfer the electric charges from the depletion layer 4 to the P-type semiconductor layer 5. Moreover, because the depletion layer 4 is also formed on a part of the PN junction 1, the electric charges generated in the depletion layer 4 are also transferred to the outside of the PN junction 1 by applying a forward bias to the PN junction 1. Accordingly, there is a possibility that the electric charges generated in the depletion layer 4 may adversely affect the operation 1cb139a0ed
