Description Personal information about the author This text was written by: Róbert László Kállay Good extensions are like friends: You can't imagine living without them. They can make your work easier, improve the quality of your experience and make your life a bit easier. However, like friends, they are also fun to have around and their benefit can sometimes be unexpected. A few years ago, I was standing in line at an AirBnB checkout. The person in front of me had a few seconds and my attention was already taken by a somewhat annoying fact: I was about to have to enter my credit card details on a web page. The problem was that the first 4 digits of my credit card had already been stolen when I made the booking and the web page was not sending the right sequence. I thought for a second, and then I took out a piece of paper and started writing down the numbers I wanted to use. This way, I don't have to enter them again on the web page. When I finished, I looked up and saw the person in front of me smiling at me and I could see a similar idea cross his face. Fortunately, he understood what was going on, and his gift to me that day was a bookmarklet: javascript:location.href="+window.location.href; Of course, this is just one example of the many uses for a browser add-on. There are many other things you can do with them, and I would like to share some of my favorites. Description: Description
