Lu-Rob Enters., Inc.*, 932 F.2d 1043, 1048 (2d Cir. 1991)). -4- contemporary value, "in effect, the total depreciation cost for the plant." We find this analysis appropriate to the context of these facts. The Stuyvesant project was fully depreciated by the Endre case, yet, absent the deduction, it would have been worth a great deal less. The total depreciable value of the Stuyvesant project, including the deduction for the Endre judgment, is a clear reflection of the market value of the property, one that was at least as accurate, if not more so, than a calculation excluding the deduction for the Endre judgment. If we were to hold that the deduction was improper, the bankrupt estate would not only lose the use of the Endre settlement proceeds, but also the benefit of the deduction for depreciation as a part of the total cost of the property. Such a holding would be contrary to the equitable principles underlying bankruptcy law, and particularly the whole purpose of the depreciation deduction, which is to adjust the value of the property over time. We conclude that the bankruptcy court was justified in disallowing the deduction. III. For the foregoing reasons, the judgment of the district court is AFFIRMED.
