My camera app shows that I have to choose between the "low-resolution camera" and the "normal camera" before I can take a picture. The touch-screen on the HTC One M8 doesn't respond to my finger movements. What do I do? A: I've been working on this issue for a while now, and I have finally found a way to get the low-resolution camera to work. The solution is to use a program called "Manta" to manage the camera settings. If you go to the Settings app, and choose "Accounts & sync", then "Accounts", "Sync settings with Google", and "Enable account sync" is in the list. Enable the "Sync settings" option and then put in your Google account. You should see a Google Nexus 7 on the "Accounts & sync" screen. Select that device, and go back to the "Accounts" screen to enable account sync. After you sync, you should
