Keymacro is a small utility which provides a configuration interface for a Mac OS X Server keychain. It uses the plist format for storing configuration data. If you are using AppleScript, NSDictionary is the format that is preferred. Keymacro also supports loading of configuration data from an XML file or a plist file. Keymacro is ideal for all types of Mac OS X Server installations. It is extremely easy to install. Once you have Keymacro installed, it does all the hard work of creating and loading your Server keychain and associating your items. If you're setting up a server for the first time or you're updating an existing server's settings, Keymacro is the program for you. With Keymacro you won't have to spend time reading and writing the settings files by hand. Keymacro can generate the configuration files for you. After you've created your keychain, your server settings are ready to go. Keymacro will load your Server keychain with the username and password of your server. The service will ask you to enter the password of the server whenever you first connect to it. In case the password of your server changes, you can update your keychain settings. Version 1.4.1 of Keymacro offers some additional functionality.
