In our study, we have studied the energy metabolism of the bone tumours and found a tendency for increased amount of anaerobic glycolysis and lactate production \[Figure 1{ref-type="fig"}\]. Although the pattern of energy metabolism remains the same in all these types of bone tumours, the severity of the tumour is yet another important factor in the regulation of the energy metabolism.\[[@ref5]\] CONCLUSIONS {#sec1-5} ===== In conclusion, 1H MRS demonstrates the metabolic profile of primary bone tumours accurately, clearly, and non-invasively. Arizona isn't claiming otherwise, of course. It is putting its best defensive players on the ice every time they step on the ice. The Coyotes are the only team in the playoffs with three defenders from the 2016 No. 1 overall pick, Dylan Strome. They're also playing the minimum number of forwards allowed by the rules with Antti Raanta at the helm. The result has been a holding pattern. "I feel, as a team, we have an emotional connection and it's about as tight as it can be," defenseman Connor Murphy said. "It's about as close as we've been all year." But the Coyotes aren't winning, and there's a lot of work to be done if Arizona wants to find a way to the Stanley Cup Final. The Coyotes are 0-4 with a listless effort against Los Angeles. They've lost their first three games to the Kings, and things don't look much better in the offensive zone. Arizona ranks last in the NHL with 3.2 goals a game. It's possible the road to the Cup is already done. Phoenix leads the Pacific Division with 100 points but has been outscored 55-30 in the opening round. It's a dangerous sign for a team that went on a thrilling run last season. "We've got to play a lot better," coach Dave Tippett said. "We've got to raise our level." The Coyotes have gone through a similar routine too many times before in the playoffs. They never made it out of the first round. "I think we've played good teams all year, we just haven't been able to beat them," goalie Antti Raanta said. "We feel like we're a good team. We're in the playoffs, we're in the second round.
