This article describes the responsibilities, traits, and competencies that each of the eight Boards of Education of the State of Israel is supposed to develop as Israel's public body that is entrusted with the responsibility of educating the people. The aim of this article is to familiarize the public with this body. The Commission for the Status of Women in Israel makes every effort to ensure that the public know what it is that each of Israel's Boards of Education is supposed to be responsible for, and what it is that each of them has the responsibility of doing. Nonetheless, it is important that the public is informed on these subjects. The State of Israel, like every state in the world, has its own constitution that is the body of the law that applies in the State of Israel. The constitution was first written in our country's history in the last century, and was rewritten in the '60s, when a new constitution 6a5afdab4c
