What's New In?

The present invention relates to a method and to an apparatus for transmitting electrical signals, in which a clock signal with a high clock frequency is generated in an apparatus, an energy-saving clock signal with a clock frequency that is below the frequency of the high clock frequency signal is generated in the apparatus or another apparatus, a standard clock signal with a clock frequency that is identical to the clock frequency of the high clock frequency signal, which is used for controlling the apparatus, is generated in the apparatus or the other apparatus, the high clock frequency signal and the standard clock signal are provided to the apparatus or the other apparatus via a line, with the high clock frequency signal and the standard clock signal being frequency-modulated in the line, the frequency-modulated signals are transmitted over the line, and the frequency-modulated signals are demodulated in the apparatus or the other apparatus. In a method and an apparatus of the aforementioned kind, the standard clock signal and the high clock frequency signal are frequency-modulated with a carrier signal. If the carrier signal and the standard clock signal have a frequency deviation, then the resulting frequency-modulated signals are demodulated with a frequency discriminator by means of frequency-to-frequency conversion. If the carrier signal and the standard clock signal do not have a frequency deviation, then the resultant frequency-modulated signals are demodulated by means of a phase discriminator. A disadvantage of the known method and the apparatus of the aforementioned kind is that it is complicated to control the frequency discriminator. A protest on a train headed from a facility housing migrant children to an ICE processing center was derailed by bullies. Juan de Jesus and Marco Nieves, both asylum-seeking Cubans, managed to escape the transport vehicle and were ready to tell their story of the ongoing, inhumane treatment of child migrants at the time of publication. "The transfer was so long, it was very hard for us to keep our faith, to believe that in the end we would arrive at our destination safely," Nieves said. "These are the things that make me think that children are given more consideration than adults." Protestors say the train was packed with families and children as they arrived at the final destination at 8 p.m. ICE says that 1,500 child migrants were transported on the day in question. "The children were held in a shipping container without food or water, and were injured after being crammed
