Multiplayer on consoles has been a bummer for me at this point: I've had nothing but trouble for the last 5 or 6 games. I've lost it due to having to leave and not being able to access it, I've had lag issues, stability issues, connection issues, and I can't ever connect to servers because EA's dumb new "connect to host" screen locks me out because it thinks I'm a bot and that I've lost connection. I can never see why EA is insisting on reinventing user experience with this new thing called "connect to host". I'm not touching the new connect to host screen unless I'm in first person view (even if it will screw that up anyway). @DostLite That's really frustrating, because with the last couple (4, 5? -included in the last update- even more so...) they've had one thing working and then just fucked it all up. No more "leave game" ability, lag, stability issues, and the worst offender of all, no more saved games. I want to play with friends (or even alone), but I can't. For the record, I just played the mobile game. So far, it's garbage, but it works. At least this game wouldn't be as bad as the others if the mobile game wasn't a crashing mess. FIFA is the official videogame of the EA SPORTS FIFA series of football/soccer (or soccer) video games. It was first released in the USA in August 1994 (in North America) and August 1995 (in Europe). It was first released on the Sony PlayStation and Microsoft Windows platforms, a year later in North America. So, when you play FIFA, you are playing the official videogame of the sport. The information in this guide is for the year 2019; we expect that it will be substantially the same in year 2020. Multiplayer Matchmaking In multiplayer mode (or 'multiplayer matchmaking') you can play against other people. You can also play matches against bots. You can play matches with friends and against friends (but on different platforms, obviously) and with players from the same nation/region. Here are your options. If you find a match that you like, you can: Play it. Go back to the menu and play another game. Play a different match. Play a game in your seasonal EA SPORTS FIFA League (ESFL). Play a game in your single-season EA SPORTS FIFA League (ESFL). If you prefer the convenience of single-player mode, it's easy to find online matches. If you want to have a better understanding of the ranking system and groups, please refer to the guide on how to play FIFA 20. Please note: You can only play at most 13 matches a day (the time after each day varies between 12 am and 1 am ET). If you opt to play a game online with someone else, you will need to be at the same time zone as them and will need to be prepared to play (you can play at a different time zone but have to play at the same time). If you opt to play a game online with someone else, you will need to be at the same time zone as them and will need to be prepared to play (you can play at a different time zone but have to play at the same time). You can play up to 30 matches a season. You can queue up for a regular game every day of the week; different modes have different restrictions on how you can play. For example, you can't play any mode online after playing in a match (in a regular match).
