IPsearch [Win/Mac]

IPsearch is a web-based tool that lets you search for IP address blocks on the Internet at large. The function allows you to quickly find any given IP address range, or a particular IP address. The tool works by simply entering an address range, or a domain name to find, and then queries the Internet's name servers for that range. After searching, the results can be saved or printed out in three different formats: text, HTML and PDF. You can also use the Whois function to do a complete reverse lookup by entering a domain name and returning the associated IP address. (All functions are user-selectable) IPsearch Features: This is a web-based tool that lets you search for IP address blocks on the Internet at large. The function allows you to quickly find any given IP address range, or a particular IP address. You can also use the Whois function to do a complete reverse lookup by entering a domain name and returning the associated IP address. (All functions are user-selectable) What's New in This Release: * Today we're making a small change to the tool and the IPsearch site. If you're running the newest version of the software and choose to use "Standard Version" for the "Display URL of the IPsearch site", IPsearch will now stop printing the IP address after the last IP address is found. If you want the IP address list to print continuously, simply make the selection "custom URL". We did this to prevent the address list from printing out IP addresses that had already been found. * We have implemented a brand new email notification function. If you want us to notify you when a change is made to the source code, whether it's a new version or bug fix, please send us an email: support@inetworksoftware.com. We will then let you know when it's ready for use. * The "Whois" function can now be run in "view mode". This is usefull if you are using the tool to find an IP address for a particular person. * The "rename" function now allows you to specify the number of iterations of reverse searching to use. * The search tool now

IPsearch is a network tool that can be used to discover the IP addresses of machines on your LAN. If you are able to get a command-line prompt on your target machine (Unix/Windows), you can use the commandline version of the tool to discover the machine's IP addresses. The tool is based on tcpflow, which requires root access to the machine for installation, so it is not easy to use for non-experts. MyAirlock Features: - Allows unattended installation without user interaction - No Perl dependencies - Self-installing - Support HTML and JSON output for simple parsing - Fast thanks to the GCDAsynctask parallel execution - Support for IPv4 and IPv6 address space (no DNS name resolution) - Multi-language: ability to do the scans in any language that the user supports - Support for executing queries against multiple domains (CNAME's are ignored) - DNS lookup / Whois (uses openDNS) - Regular expression support for filtering the output - Support for any.com,.net,.org domains - Supports IPv6 CIDR notation (for IPv6 scans) - Supports IPv6 and IPv4 filename syntaxes for bulk downloads (eg, IP address.txt) - Support for browsing the currently connected hosts on the system (requires Perl DBI installed) - Support for chaining together multiple tasks (eg, check IP addresses, then Whois) - Support for setting ttl on all discovered hosts - Support for asking for a listing of hosts on a given subnet - Support for blocking IP's on the LAN, or all hosts on the LAN - Support for blocking ports on the LAN, or all hosts on the LAN - Supports both IPv4 and IPv6 host and port blocklists - Support for IPBlocklists (IPBL) - Supports IPv4/IPv6 blocklists (IPBL/IP2PBL) - Supports IPv4/IPv6 blocklists (IPBL/IP2PBL) - Supports host to host blocking - Supports IP to host to host blocking - Supports host to host to host/service blocking - Supports host/service to host/service blocking - Supports host/service to host/service/protocol blocking - Supports host/service to host/service to host/service/protocol blocking - Supports host/service to host/service/protocol/
