Q: Generating a 1:10000 (or larger) random walk I'm trying to generate a 1:10000 random walk on a length scale of some 1 (or larger). I'm looking for ideas on how to perform the following in either Mathematica or Matlab: Let my grid be $N \times N$ and my region be $M \times M$ I generate a random 1:M ratio of walks (one for every grid box) Generate a random length in 1:M ratio Generate a random length in 1:10000 ratio The region needs to be large enough so that the spread out of my movement is negligible. My idea was that since I have a distribution with a given standard deviation, that this should be rather easy to simulate. Unfortunately I haven't been able to find the necessary formula in either Mathematica or Matlab. Any ideas or experience on how to do this would be appreciated. Note: I have to do this for a specific Lorentzian distribution that I have with a known standard deviation. A: Would you have to find the standard deviation? If so, take a look at the sample standard deviation function in Mathematica: $s[x_] := \text{Sqrt}[(\text{Sum}[(y - x)^2, \{y, 0, N\}] / N) / N]$; This will give you a number that is the standard deviation of the vector. A: Consider simulating N^2 independent random variables x_{ij} each with values in $[0,1]$. For each $1 \leq i, j \leq N$ set $r_{ij} = x_{ij} - x_{ij}$
