I have a list of entities of different classes - a list of monkey objects, a list of dog objects, and a list of vase objects. I need a way to check if one instance exists or if more than one instance exist. I think this is relatively easy to achieve, but I cannot figure it out. using System.Collections.Generic; using System.Collections.ObjectModel; namespace HelloWorld { class Program { static void Main(string[] args) { List monkeyList = new List() { new Monkey("Andy"), new Monkey("Mike"), new Monkey("Terry") }; List dogList = new List() { new Dog("Chase"), new Dog("Jake"), new Dog("Ruff") }; List vaseList = new List() { new Vase("Blue"), new Vase("Orange"), new Vase("Yellow") }; List list = new List() { monkeyList, dogList, vaseList }; int count = list.Count(); if (count > 0) { Console.WriteLine(list[1]); } else {

Golden AxeQ: How to grab value from observableArray Hello I have a list as I need to add or remove list items as per button clicks. So I need to get all item values from my observableArray and add or remove from the observableArray. My add button's action is as follows addSelected

: function(){ var a = []; var local = localStorage; $.each(localStorage.items, function(index, item){ $.each(item.Product_line, function(i, p){ var d = new Date(p.Date_time.substr(6,6)); a.push({"Date_time": d.toLocaleDateString(), "Product": p.Product_name, "Sub_name": p.Product_line}); }); }); localStorage.items = JSON.stringify(a); localStorage.total_item = a.length; console.log(a); },

Now what should i do to remove selected item? A: All you need is a working mechanism to get a reference to an item in your observableArray. Here is one way of doing it

- Add this member to your viewModel - public function

removeItem(selectedItem:int):void { this.selectedItem = null; //remove item from this.observableArray this.selectedItems =
